

Curriculum Project – Cadre 20

Earthquakes

Petra Somar

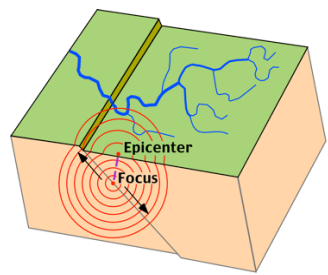

Azusa Pacific University

What do you get from a cow after an earthquake?

Milk Shake

Your mission, should you chose to accept it, is to visit the following sites to help you on your upcoming Earthquake Research Paper. Good Luck! Be Creative! Have Fun!

Earthquake What is an Earthquake? What are the different plate boundaries where Earthquakes occur? What is a P wave and S wave? 	Plates  Visit this site to make note of the differences between an earthquakes epicenter and focus.
Earthquake From History Chose one of the following Earthquakes that made history, and discuss why it made headlines. 	Earthquake Preparedness How do you prepare for an Earthquake?
USGS Site Use the USGS site to research recnt Earthquakes that have happened within the past week.	Grading Requiremnts: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - All paragraphs must have high quality information from the sites shown. - No Grammar Errors - Typed – 12 pt. Font - Name and Title on Page 1

Earthquake Resources

References

- Amanda. (2008, May 12). Earthquakes and plates [Web log post]. Retrieved from <http://earthquakesandplates.wordpress.com/>
- Famous earthquakes in history. (n.d.). Retrieved from <http://earthquakefacts.net/Earthquake-History.html>
- Harold. (2012, February 27). How to prepare for an earthquake [Web log post]. Retrieved from <http://www.wikihow.com/Prepare-for-an-Earthquake>
- Plate Tectonics. (2010). Plate Boundaries. Retrieved from http://www.platetectonics.com/book/page_5.asp
- U.S. Geological Survey. (2012). Earthquakes. Retrieved from <http://earthquake.usgs.gov/earthquakes/>